On January 1st, 2012, RecordMax USA, LLC President Jim Teske assumed the presidency for recognized leading industry trade association PRISM International. PRISM members, located in over 60 countries, provide traditional offsite records retention & delivery along with complimentary information services including computer back-up tape storage & rotation programs, digital imaging services, document shredding and other business solutions to customers. Alongside PRISM's corporate partners (who provide software, technology, consulting, storage systems, business continuity or disaster recovery, shredding and storage products and industrial equipment, PRISM International members have been serving the records management community, through a merger of the Association of Commercial Records Centers (ACRC) and the National Association of Secure Data Vaults (NASDV), since 1980.

Taking on PRISM's leadership role during a time of significant change, based primarily on the departure of longtime Executive Director Jim Booth, Mr. Teske worked as a part of the transition committee to establish a succession plan beginning in early 2011.

In conjunction with PRISM's recent hiring of the Association Management Center (AMC) earlier this month, SDB Magazine conducted an interview to help educate the industry on the transition process as well as the current state of the commercial information management profession. In a similar effort, Tom Adams of Flourish Press conducted a one-on-one for his weekly RIM Pro Report...offering a recorded interview and a more personalized communication about the transition process. That recording can be found at: <http://rimproreport.com/rimproreport-show-83/>
